MARTIN: In sad but loving memory of our mother, Drusilla Layne Martin who died 12 years ago, July 9, 1946.

This road into the sunset is one we each must tread.

When our loved one goes ahead,
Still there is comfort in knowing,
We will meet again someday.

Jesus on Justice

Lesson for July 13, 1958

If any one is an authority on the subject of justice, it should be God Almighty himself. Christians believe that God's mind is revealed to us in Jesus Christ. So it is extremely important to find out what Jesus had to say on any topic. Now Jesus never once used the expression "social justice." He didn't have to. For the question of justice never comes up at all unless there are as many as two persons involved in a situation. And if there are as many as two, you have a social situation and any time there is social justice. Furthermore, the kind of justice that counts is social. Court-room justice isn't worth much if it does not produce social justice.

Dr. Foreman

Nothing Cancels Out Justice

Some people have supposed that living in the New Testament light, we have outgrown the need for justice—that Christians live by love, or grace, or faith, or mystic vision, or something else, anything else but justice. Some people will tell you that the gospel cancels out justice, that justice is an Old Testament word and we Christians have outgrown it. This is not true. Nothing cancels justice. For one thing, most of Jesus' teaching dealt with right relationships among men, and the short name for that is justice. For another thing Jesus did speak directly of this thing. He condemned the Pharisees severely because they had forgotten it. According to Luke's account, Jesus said the Pharisees had neglected justice and the love of God. In Matthew's story, Jesus said the Pharisees had neglected justice and mercy and faith. Note in both cases: Justice and ... He mentions justice first always.

Is Justice Impossible?

About the only way to get around this (or to try to do so) is to fancy that somehow or other Jesus' teachings do not apply to us. All one need say about that point of view is that when a "Christian" reaches the point where he will not take his orders from the Lord Jesus, he had better consider whether he rates the name of Christian after all. However, there are a pair of further objections we should consider. One is that since only God knows what is finally true, we must leave all matters of social justice to him. He alone is judge of the whole earth; and our own "justice" can never be based on full knowledge of all the facts, as God's is. So let's give up the whole thing, shall we? NO! Such talk is unadulterated nonsense. The grain of truth in that argument is that perfect justice calls for perfect mercy or faith or love of God—is not attainable in this life by us mortals. Nevertheless mere mortals can and do live as the Christian's business—and so is justice. We need God's forgiveness for the injustices of our "justice;" but we would need his forgiveness far more if we never tried to be just at all.

Isn't Ours a "Different" World?

Another way people try to bypass Jesus' teaching is to point out that we are living in a different world from his. One very important difference is this: Most of the people we deal with, in our complex, industrial, urban civilization, we never see and do not even know who they are; whereas in the world of Jesus' time a man knew all his neighbors and he never dealt with any one else. It is a difficult business just to live right with people you know. But how is a dairy farmer going to be fair with the consumers in a district only he never sees? How is a stockholder in General Motors going to live right with, and do right by, Mr. Mather? How is a plain citizen of the U.S.A. going to do the right thing by a plain citizen of the U.S.S.R.? These are terribly difficult questions. Any reader can write out a page full of such problems and never sense and church time. He will not find all the answers in the book. Perhaps no one knows the answers—yet. But remembering how our Lord put justice first, we cannot dodge the duty of thinking hard and long on how we in our time can make justice a real thing.

McCann May Run As Independent In Nov.

The deadline for the Republican Fourth District Committee to nominate a candidate, to oppose Democratic incumbent, Watkins M. Abbitt, of Appomattox, passed Tuesday, with no candidate being named. However, Frank M. McCann, Appomattox attorney, has let it be known that he intends to file as an independent candidate against Abbitt. Deadline for filing is July 25.

McCann appeared at the Republican state convention Saturday in Roanoke, announcing that he would oppose Abbitt in the general election. This announcement was hailed by State Senator Ted Dalton and several other leading state Republicans.

However, Republican Fourth District Chairman, Harry Vaughan, of Hopewell, said that the district committee had voted not to nominate a candidate, saying the time was not "propitious" to oppose Abbitt. Vaughan said that Appomattox was not represented at the Republican district committee meeting or at the Republican district convention Vaughan is quoted as saying that the district Republican committee declined to change its stand, but he indicated that McCann would very likely receive Republican help in event he files as an independent candidate. It is necessary to have 250 district voters to sign petitions for a candidate to file.

Abbitt has made no comment on these developments. He has represented the Fourth District since 1948, when he won a special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Patrick H. Drewry. Since then he has been re-nominated and re-elected without opposition.

The Fourth District is made up of the cities of Petersburg, Suffolk and Hopewell, and 18 counties: Appomattox, Buckingham, Cumberland, Prince Edward, Powhatan, Amelia, Nottoway, Lunenburg, Mecklenburg, Dinwiddie, Brunswick, Greensville, Prince George, Sussex, Surry, Southampton, Isle of Wight, and Nansemond.

Abbitt has become one of the top leaders in the dominant Democratic organization in the state, and managed the campaigns of the incumbent Governor, J. Lindsay Almond, and of his predecessor, Gov. Thomas Stanley. He, himself, has often been mentioned both as a candidate for Governor and for the U. S. Senate in event of the retirement at some future date of either incumbent Senator.

McCann began practice of law here following his graduation at the Law School of the College of William and Mary. He has been most active in civic affairs, holding top offices in the American Legion, Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Red Cross Chapter.

Identification Of Tobacco Now Underway

This week the U. S. Department of Agriculture set in motion a program, announced earlier, to identify certain varieties of flue-cured tobacco classified as "undesirable" to the trade. The program is conducted by identification specialists under the direction of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee.

James E. Warren, State ASC Committeeman and Mecklenburg County tobacco producer, said that the program which began July 14, will require about 60 days, and that over 6,000 flue-cured tobacco farms will be visited during that period. Warren said ASC officials have just completed an intensive training program for identification specialists and that there are 24 men now in Southside Virginia tobacco fields carrying out the identification program.

The program was in force for the first time in 1957 to discourage the production of Coker 139, Coker 140, and Dixie Bright 244 varieties of flue-cured tobacco. Tobacco from fields planted to these varieties or mixtures of these varieties will be supported at 50 per cent of the rate for comparable grades of other varieties. These discounted varieties will be identified by the issuance to the producer of a blue "limited support" marketing card which will indicate that the tobacco is not eligible for full price support. Also, discount variety tobacco will be identified on the auction warehouse floor by special basket tickets. Identification will apply to both producers and to resales by dealers and warehousemen.

The Coker 139, Coker 140, and Dixie Bright 244 varieties have been described by scientists as "low to lacking in flavor and aroma, generally of light body and/or currently with poor acceptance in the trade." These are the same three varieties under the discount price support program in 1957. All segments of the tobacco industry joined to discourage the production of these varieties by urging the Department of Agriculture to make a downward adjustment in the support rates. Beginning with the 1957 crop, the Department did just that.

OBSERVER PROGRAM STILL IMPORTANT

"Operation Skywatch," the air defense operation that involves the eyes of thousands of volunteer Americans skyward to watch for approaching enemy aircraft, will mark its sixth anniversary in July, 1958. While no nation celebration is planned for the anniversary, the Air Defense Command pays tribute to the countless hours GOC observers have contributed in the past and are continuing to contribute during periodic training exercises.

Today, the Ground Observer Corps has 31 filter centers throughout the United States. There are nearly 11,000 civilian volunteers at the centers, plus another 268,000 registered with 15,647 active observation posts.

None of the volunteers are officially on Skywatch, but all are still longging planes that fly over their posts during training exercises. The last of the observation posts and skywatchers on 24 hour duty were relieved of their around the clock responsibility last January 1st when the Ground Observer Corps was placed on "Ready-Reserve" status. However, the change did not mean there would be any lessening of training or operational efficiency in his highly important segment of the North American Air Defense System. The need for trained observers is essential to provide the air surveillance so necessary to air defense.

The completion of the DEW line — a radar network that stretches across the Arctic Circle and out to sea and a warning net across Canada have made easing of GOC duties possible.

Observation Posts in this area are located at Appomattox, Pamplin and Concord.

West German production decline causes concern.

NEW BOOK IN THE COUNTY LIBRARY

Daybreak

By Frank G. Slaughter.

Daybreak revolves around the crucial issue today driving a young doctor to seek a new treatment for schizophrenia before a lovely young patient was doomed to undergo a frontal lobotomy — a brain operation which just might reduce her to a kind of dehumanized zombie. This book is unquestionable the finest medical novel Dr. Slaughter, who is both a physician and surgeon as well as the author of twenty-three novels, has written.

Mrs. Vaughan's Pupils In Piano Recital

Those participating in the recital will be: "Butch" Bryant, Brenda Carter, Joyce Edmonds, Alice Evans, Amy Evans, Rose Evans, Russel Evans, Dolly Lee Ferguson, Sandra Harvey, Helen Martin, Jerry Martin, June Nash, Linda Rogers.

LOCAL YOUTHS AT BOYS' - GIRLS' STATE

Terry Rogers Charles Burks Peggy Godsey Frances Sanders

Terry Rogers, Charles Burks, Peggy Godsey and Frances Sanders are in Blackburg attending American Legion Boys and Girls State.

These "States," which put the knowledge of city and state governments into actual practice, are conducted each year on the campus of V. P. I. by the American Legion and the Legion Auxiliary, respectively. While there the boys and girls live as citizens of designated cities and carry on all the duties of officers and citizens of a city as well as those of state. A total of 520 girls and 500 boys will attend.

Even though conducted by the American Legion and Auxiliary, other organizations may sponsor a youth, who must be a junior in high school and elected by his class. The four boys and girls attending from Appomattox are sponsored by American Legion Post 104, American Legion Auxiliary Unit 104, Appomattox Woman's Club, and Appomattox Lions Club.

Softball League

Attendance has dropped off at the games in the Appomattox Softball League, and a plea for more support is being made. Games of late have been closely contended, and all those who like wholesome recreation are asked to come out to the town ball park and see softball played by local teams.

HIGHWAY STATISTICS

During the past decade, America's bloody affection for the automobile has cost us 357,805 deaths, 12,350,000 disabling injuries, and an economic loss of $37,000,000,000.

These figures represent 30,000 more than the battle deaths of both World War II and the Korean conflict.

Tobacco Hornworms

Many tobacco growers ask what is the most effective insecticide, that can be used to control tobacco hornworms. The best is Endrin, used either as a dust or spray. Use 1½ 2% dust at the rate of 15 to 20 pounds per acre. A 19.5% emulsifiable concentrate at the rate of 1 pint in 50 gallons of water.

Precaution: Endrin is a highly poisonous material and reasonable precautions should be used when handling.

McCann appeared at the Republican state convention Saturday in Roanoke, announcing that he would oppose Abbitt in the general election. This announcement was hailed by State Senator Ted Dalton and several other leading state Republicans.

However, Republican Fourth District Chairman, Harry Vaughan, of Hopewell, said that the district committee had voted not to nominate a candidate, saying the time was not "propitious" to oppose Abbitt. Vaughan said that Appomattox was not represented at the Republican district committee meeting or at the Republican district convention Vaughan is quoted as saying that the district Republican committee declined to change its stand, but he indicated that McCann would very likely receive Republican help in event he files as an independent candidate. It is necessary to have 250 district voters to sign petitions for a candidate to file.

Abbitt has made no comment on these developments. He has represented the Fourth District since 1948, when he won a special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Patrick H. Drewry. Since then he has been re-nominated and re-elected without opposition.

The Fourth District is made up of the cities of Petersburg, Suffolk and Hopewell, and 18 counties: Appomattox, Buckingham, Cumberland, Prince Edward, Powhatan, Amelia, Nottoway, Lunenburg, Mecklenburg, Dinwiddie, Brunswick, Greensville, Prince George, Sussex, Surry, Southampton, Isle of Wight, and Nansemond.

Abbitt has become one of the top leaders in the dominant Democratic organization in the state, and managed the campaigns of the incumbent Governor, J. Lindsay Almond, and of his predecessor, Gov. Thomas Stanley. He, himself, has often been mentioned both as a candidate for Governor and for the U. S. Senate in event of the retirement at some future date of either incumbent Senator.

McCann began practice of law here following his graduation at the Law School of the College of William and Mary. He has been most active in civic affairs, holding top offices in the American Legion, Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Red Cross Chapter.
